

Building Generational Wealth and Success

Who We Are

We are a nonprofit organization started by Black men with a profound passion for servicing and uplifting their communities.

Building Generational Wealth and Success, Inc. was created because many individuals aren't equipped with essential money management or professional development skills. Year after year, young Black adolescents enter the workforce devoid of proper role models in their lives to direct their path and with poor spending practices- we seek to change that.

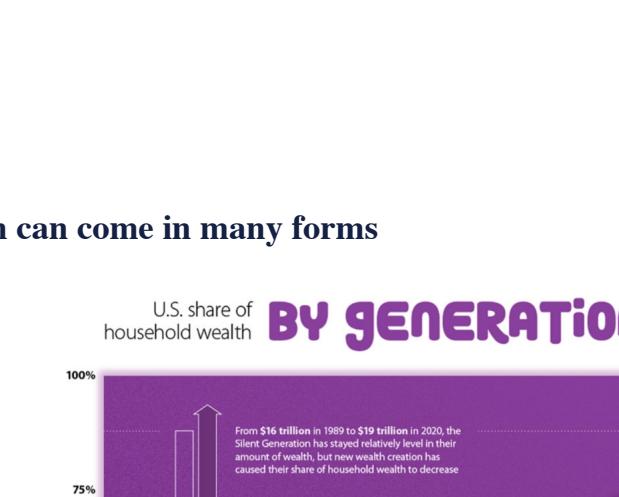

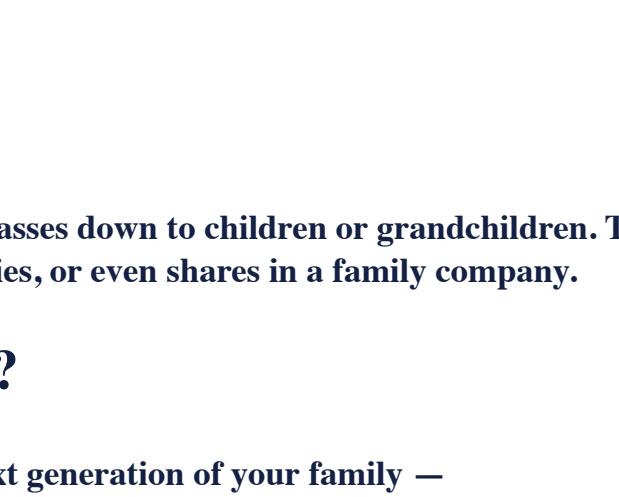

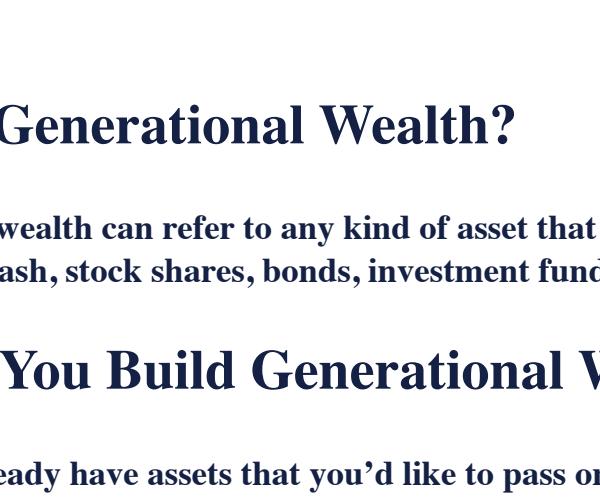

What We Do

Our nonprofit organization was made to counteract the challenges and stressors that Black youth face throughout their teenage years to propel them to success as they continue through life. We aim to create sustainable change in low socioeconomic communities of color by adding professional value to our members and working with our community members to create a better and brighter future.

At our core, we seek to advance the Black man in society. Building Generational Wealth and Success is an organization that provides hope and opportunity to black adolescents by teaching them how to become financially literate, possess professional development skills, and enter any space with a growth & success mindset!

FAQ

What is Generational Wealth?

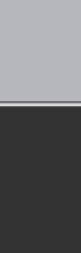

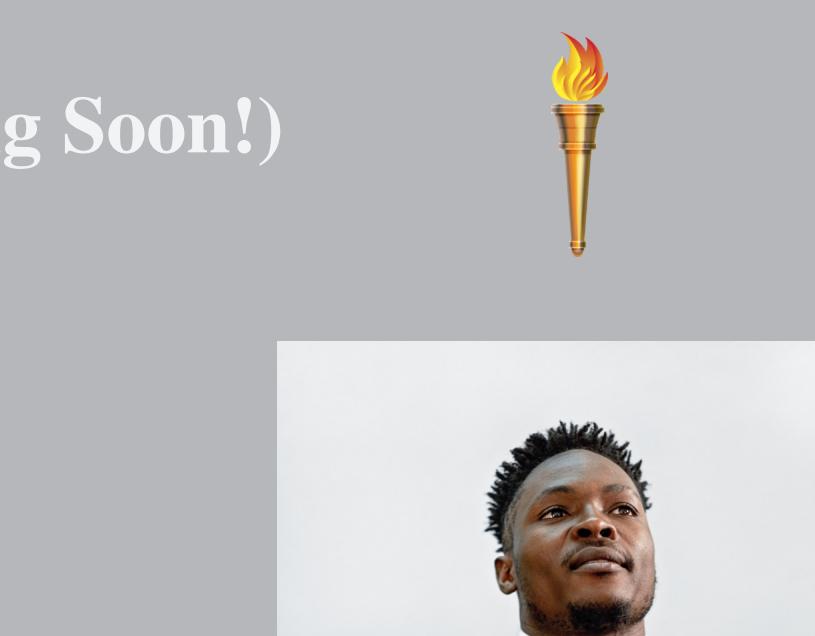

Generational wealth can refer to any kind of asset that a family passes down to children or grandchildren. That wealth can come in many forms — including cash, stock shares, bonds, investment funds, properties, or even shares in a family company.

How Do You Build Generational Wealth?

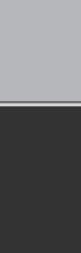

You many already have assets that you'd like to pass on to the next generation of your family — but plenty of us have to start from scratch. Fortunately, there are plenty of strategies available that you can use acquire assets and save money. The investment strategies you ultimately go for will depend on your lifestyle, investment style, timeline, the age of the children in your life, and more. To help you get started, we'll break down some of the most popular investment strategies families use to accumulate or grow existing generational wealth.

Why do we need Generational Wealth?

Simply put, generational wealth is all about empowering the next generation of your family with financial freedom. If you're starting from scratch financially or you've got a large debt right out of college, you'll definitely understand the importance of generational wealth first-hand. Think about it: if a child's parents or loved ones are able to do something like fund their college education, it can make a world of difference to their financial future. Instead of spending decades repaying huge student loans, they can focus on saving money to buy their first home, take a trip around the world, build start-up funds for a new business, save for their future retirement, or anything in between.
